Are you wondering why the men you date always seem to lose interest after a few weeks? Or maybe you're in a relationship but you can't seem to get your partner to open up to you emotionally.

If you're struggling to attract and keep a man's attention, it's possible that you're sending off some unintended signals that are turning him away.

In her new book, Are You Scaring Him Away?, relationship expert Dr. Fran Walfish reveals the seven most common mistakes women make that drive men away. These mistakes include:

- Being too aggressive

- Coming on too strong
- Being too needy
- Being too controlling
- Being too critical
- Being too insecure
- Being too independent

Dr. Walfish explains that these mistakes can make men feel threatened, overwhelmed, and even suffocated. As a result, they may start to pull away or even end the relationship altogether.

If you want to attract and keep a man's attention, it's important to be aware of the signals you're sending. If you're making any of the mistakes listed above, it's time to make some changes.

Are You Scaring Him Away? can help you identify the mistakes you're making and learn how to correct them. With Dr. Walfish's guidance, you can create a more fulfilling and lasting relationship with the man of your dreams.

Here are some tips from Are You Scaring Him Away? to help you avoid sending the wrong signals:

- Be yourself. Men are attracted to women who are genuine and authentic.
- Don't try to be someone you're not. Men can tell when you're being fake.

- Be confident. Men are attracted to women who are confident in themselves.
- Don't be afraid to show your interest, but don't come on too strong. Men like to feel like they're the ones pursuing you.
- Be patient. Men need time to open up emotionally. Don't pressure him to share his feelings before he's ready.
- Be supportive. Men want to feel like they have someone they can rely on.
- Be understanding. Men are different from women, and they may need some time to adjust to your way of thinking and communicating.

By following these tips, you can create a more positive and attractive image for yourself. You'll be more likely to attract and keep the man of your dreams.
