Excerpt

Angela Connor was just 19 years old when she joined the ambulance service. She had always wanted to help people, and she saw becoming a paramedic as the perfect way to do that. Little did she know that her life was about to change in ways she could never have imagined.

In her first year on the job, Angela responded to a call about a car accident. When she arrived on scene, she found a young woman trapped in the wreckage. The woman was badly injured, and Angela knew that she had to act quickly to save her life.

Angela worked tirelessly to free the woman from the car. Once she was free, Angela began to assess her injuries. The woman had a broken leg, a concussion, and several lacerations. Angela knew that she needed to get the woman to the hospital as quickly as possible.

Angela loaded the woman into the ambulance and began driving to the hospital. On the way, she talked to the woman and tried to keep her calm. The woman was in a lot of pain, but she was also very grateful to Angela for saving her life.
