The end of the world Is not with a bang But a whimper Not a fiery cataclysm But a slow, steady drip Of our own creation

These words echo through the pages, reminding us of our own mortality and the importance of cherishing each moment.

The Nature of Truth

In "The Trembling Answers," Jane Hirshfield explores the subjective nature of experience:

The trembling answers, uncertain, as a moth's wing when it folds and folds again into the dark.

The world is too much with us; late and soon, Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers;-- Little we see in Nature that is ours; We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!

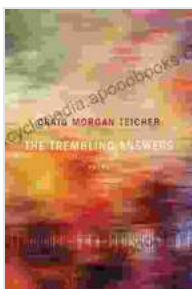

Collins' words resonate with a profound sense of loss and longing, highlighting the human tendency to become detached from the natural world.
